'It's thrilling, exciting and terrifying': NASA prepares for first helicopter flight on Mars

NASA's plan to launch the Ingenuity on Sunday has been decades in the making, says Robert Hogg, the deputy surface mission manager for the Mars 2020 program.

NASA's Perseverance Mars rover took a selfie with the Ingenuity helicopter, seen in the background. This image was taken by the WASTON camera on the rover's robotic arm on April 6, 2021, the 46th Martian day, or sol, of the mission. | NASA/JPL-Caltech/MSSS
